TRANSFORMATORY PRACTICES

The 2021 edition of Lund Architecture Symposium (LAS21) will address the emergence of transformatory practices in architecture. The pressing contemporary challenges in global discourse require architects to dissolve – even obliterate – the conventional boundaries between design and implementation. These transformatory practices combine multiple skills from various industries to advance the construction of new imaginaries. This symposium will explore different areas and aspects of intervention, where architects activate innovation and criticality in composite with actors and ideas that traditionally orbits the discipline of architecture.
